Explanations

English Language (Basic Knowledge)

Q.1 · Answer (C) delegates

Delegates are people sent to represent others at a conference, which fits 'participated in the conference'. 'Clever' and 'intelligent' are adjectives, not nouns, and 'talents' are abilities (or, loosely, gifted people), not representatives at a conference.

Q.2 · Answer (A) impoverished

'Cash-strapped' means short of money: the company was 'impoverished', made poor, which is why he applied for a loan.

Q.3 · Answer (B) did not have

'Did' is followed by the base form of the verb: 'did not have', not 'did not had'.

Q.4 · Answer (D) “Call me when you reach there”, Bharati told Rakesh.

The reported command becomes an imperative: 'her' (Bharati herself) becomes 'me', 'he reached' becomes 'you reach', and the past reporting verb 'told' stays.

Q.5 · Answer (B) It

The singular pronoun 'It' stands for the park, the subject of the sentence before.

Q.6 · Answer (A) city

Champaner is then described as 'a city which was founded by Vanraj Chavda', so it is the historical 'city'.

Q.7 · Answer (B) most

The superlative 'most prominent' singles Vanraj Chavda out among the kings of his dynasty; 'more' would need a comparison, and 'chief' and 'main' cannot qualify the adjective 'prominent'.

Q.8 · Answer (C) after

To name something 'after' a person is to give it that person's name.

B introduces the grey hare; D says that at night he would prick up one ear, C that he would then prick up the other and sit up on his hind legs, and A that he would leap and 'sit up again': BDCA.

'Abdication' is a monarch's giving up of the throne. 'Renunciation' and 'abandonment' are the giving up of anything, and 'resignation' is the leaving of an office or job.

'Despite' takes no 'of' ('in spite of' does): 'Despite her tiredness'.
